DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 3-7 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention as previously set forth.

2. Claims 1, 2, and 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 1, "Structure able" is not idiomatic.

Regarding claim 9, it is believed that the claim is dependent on the wrong claim.

Regarding claim 11, "and or more" is grammatically incorrect.

3. Claims 1, 8, 9, 10 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (b) as being anticipated by Weissman et al. (6135253). Weissman teaches a luggage having a flexible collapsible compartmented interior structure able to fit when in a collapsed state into an interior of the luggage to be transformed from the collapsed state (Fig. 3) into a temporary sturdy expanded state when the luggage is open (Fig. 1) as claimed.

Regarding claim 2, the term "compartmented flexible interior arrangement" require only one compartment and flexible portion 20 has one compartment as claimed.

Regarding claim 10, the locking mechanism is the closure of the luggage locking the flexible interior structure into place.

Regarding claim 13, the recitation "is able to be removed" is broad. It is noted that the interior structure is removable as claimed.

4. Claims 1, and 8-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (e) as being anticipated by Platte, III, (D501601) or in the alternative, over Platte, III. Platte teaches having a flexible collapsible compartmented interior structure able to fit when in a collapsed state into an interior of the luggage to be transformed from the collapsed state (Fig. 9) into a temporary sturdy expanded state when the luggage is open (Fig. 10) as claimed.

With respect to the limitation "a flexible collapsible compartment", it is noted that arrangement in Platte is flexible as claimed, i.e., it is noted of the flexible upper portion, including flexible portion adjacent the telescoping portions for shielding the trays from the telescopic portions.

In the alternative, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the upper portion including the straps, the upper portion, the shielding between the trays and the telescopic portions from flexible material to provide the desired material for these elements.

5. Claims 1, 2, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (b) as being anticipated by Silverman (2657726). Silverman teaches convertible luggage having a flexible collapsible compartmented interior structure as shown in Fig. 4.

Regarding claim 2, note the support walls 10a.

6. Claims 1, 2, and 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (e) as being anticipated by Dullin (6910560). Dulling teaches a convertible luggage having a flexible collapsible compartmented interior structure as shown in Fig. 9.

Regarding claim 2, the support mechanism comprises the fastening devices holding the structure in the expanded position.

Regarding claim 12, note the handle 62.

Art Unit: 3727

7. Claims 1, 2, 8, 9, 10, and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Watson (668864). Watson teaches a convertible luggage having a flexible collapsible compartmented interior structure as shown in Fig. 1 with telescoping support.
